

Einav

ENSURING SAFETY AND CALM

Einav is a small, thriving community located on a strategically significant hilltop in western Samaria. Founded by Religious Zionist pioneers forty years ago, Einav's residents are committed to settling and growing the land of their forefathers in fulfillment of Biblical prophecy. Despite the challenges of being surrounded on all sides by hostile Arab villages, the people of Einav remain united in their love and devotion to Biblical values and the Holy Land. But as local Arabs are still bent on uprooting a Jewish presence in the area, the people of Einav continue to live under constant terrorist threat.

Last year, three terrorists threw Molotov cocktails at soldiers stationed outside Einav. While the army responded in full force, residents remained in their homes, hearing the sounds of gunfire echoing outside. Since Einav does not have an emergency center, where they can communicate with other security teams and provide real-time updates to residents, local families, hiding in their homes, kept hearing the harrowing sounds of battle for over an hour, not knowing whether their lives were in imminent danger. They were terrified! Another time, terrorists set fire to surrounding fields. The fire spread fast through the dry vegetation, requiring help from both local and more distant firefighting crews. The people of Einav heard approaching sirens but did not know what was going on. Eventually, emergency teams evacuated Einav residents, and no lives or property were harmed that day. But without an emergency center, the lives of local volunteers were endangered, and panic festered. The stress of the unknown took its toll on the residents.

Power failures occur frequently in rural Israel, especially during the winter months. Without backup systems, repair crews must be present at the scene to restore power. In Samaria, an area heavily populated by hostile Arabs, repair crews often must wait for police or IDF protection, prolonging the blackout period. But worse yet, in Einav, every time the power goes out, lives are at risk. Einav recently installed a surveillance system to alert its rapid response team to hostile attacks, thanks to the generous support of CFOIC Heartland donors. But without an emergency generator in Einav, the surveillance cameras do not function during blackouts, endangering the life of every resident in Einav.

Einav desperately needs to purchase an emergency generator and install an emergency center, to help them manage emergencies more efficiently. Einav's resilient pioneers are particularly vulnerable to frequent terrorist attacks, especially during blackouts. By supporting this vital emergency project, you will partner with the people of Einav, providing them with greater protection during emergencies, as they continue to settle and grow in the Biblical Heartland.

COMMUNITY SNAPSHOT

- ☆ Founded: 1981
- ☆ Location: Samaria
- ☆ Origin of Name: Einav is Hebrew for grape and refers to the vineyards that were prominent in Samaria in Biblical times. Similar to the name of a nearby Arab village, Anabta, that may reflect an ancient Jewish village of a similar name
